

Learn how we are strategically positioned to support our employees, clients, and stakeholders in this time of great uncertainty. Read Farber's COVID-19 update.

Farber's hallmark has always been, and will continue to be, a commitment to its people, families and communities. Most importantly, in times of great uncertainty this commitment remains true.

As the COVID-19 situation continues to evolve, the health, safety and well-being of every one of our employees, clients and stakeholders remains our top priority.

Currently, all of our offices remain open to ensure we have access to critical engagement files. That being said, we have implemented business continuity protocols—including remote working for a majority of our staff.

As a precaution, we have also adjusted and implemented the following measures:

- limited in-person meetings and shifted to videoconferencing and web-based communications
- updated our international travel policies for all staff members
- bolstered our office sanitation and health measures
- postponed all B. Riley Farber events scheduled until further notice

Rest assured, we are closely following the guidance of Toronto Public Health, the evolution of the outbreak, and our leadership team is closely monitoring the situation around the clock—adjusting our response as needed.

While this worldwide outbreak is an unprecedented situation, B. Riley Farber is prepared to carry on with the same level of dedicated service, advice and collaboration to our clients and stakeholders—which has been the calling-card of the firm for the past 41 years.

Working in volatile and uncertain environments is in our DNA and we're here to support our network—helping you navigate any business challenge you may be facing.

In the meantime, our thoughts and prayers go out to those families impacted by COVID-19 and we thank you in advance for your patience during this time of great uncertainty.

Making business work better, together.™

Your friends at Farber.
