With experience ranging from psychology to project management and journalism, Dave brings a depth of knowledge to his training. He is passionate about accessing the potential in people and teams through promoting emotional intelligence and creativity in the workplace. His approach involves:

- preparing businesses and leaders for the Imagination Economy
- facilitating professional and personal behavior change through a process of self-awareness
- promoting effective team and individual performance
- equipping businesses with the tools for effective communication and deep listening
- building narrative into written presentations
- improving business writing skills

Dave has worked with leaders and teams in a variety of sectors and industries. His expertise lies in understanding and managing the business impact of human emotion.

Of interest...

- Dave is in tune with his creative side, as a novelist, song writer and guitarist. He hopes to add gardening into the mix, but building strong, lasting relationships is at the top of his list—for both his family and his clients. Read his Faces of Farber profile to learn more
