Profile overview

His hiring process has been developed over 20 years, is highly researched, people based, and reverse engineers a process to deliver on time and on budget for our clients and candidates.

Having run his own business and been an executive in transition himself, he is empathetic and has real value to add to the needs of both clients who are hiring and candidates looking for great opportunities.

Coming from a family farm in Ireland, he is especially passionate about the rewarding world of family business consulting and succession planning.

He specializes in five areas:

- helping clients (privately owned, publicly traded and private equity owned businesses) attract, assess, and retain the best executive, manufacturing, supply chain, and service business leaders to grow their businesses
- succession planning for clients
- being a trusted business partner and advisor to businesses going through change
- helping organizations who are moving to and scaling their North American businesses to attract, assess, and retain the best talent aligned to their needs
- accessing hard to find talent. Either geographic challenged or talent searches that have limited talent pools in Canada
